WALT DISNEY'S
THE LOST MASTERPIECE OF
GOOFY DA VINCI

BETWEEN THE LINES

WE OUGHT TO BE IN PICTURES

This month is a big one for us movie fans here at the Mouseworks, so let's get right to the action.

SCENE ONE: Well, first, we're proud to present the world premiere of the full length animated feature, DUCKTALES: THE MOVIE — THE TREASURE OF THE LOST LAMP. The film is now playing in better theatres everywhere, and our 64-page prestige format graphic adaptation, written by John Lustig and illustrated by the Jaime Diaz Studios, should be appearing at your favorite comics shop or local newsstand momentarily (if it's not on sale already).

SCENE TWO: Next, there's our long-awaited graphic adaptation of this summer's blockbuster hit, Touchstone Pictures' DICK TRACY, written by Yours Truly and admirably illustrated by Kyle Baker, again on sale at those same aforementioned outlets. If you loved the movie you'll be stunned by the comic. We promise you that.

SCENE THREE: And if you like being scared straight out of your socks, you won't want to miss Hollywood Comics' 64-page graphic adaptation of Amb in Entertainment's summer suspense thriller, ARACHNOPHOBIA. Scripted by award-winning author William Roisler, meticulously illustrated by comics legend Dan Spiegle, and lovingly hand-colored by rising star Sam Parsons, it gave us chills just looking at it.

SCENE FOUR: For all you fans of classic Disney, we're pleased to present our 64-page graphic adaptation of THE JUNGLE BOOK. Written by Carl Falberg and illustrated by Al Hubbard, this adaptation captures all the fun and wonderment of the classic Disney full-length animated film, which should still be playing at your local theatres even as we speak. And be sure to keep an eagle eye out for Baloo, King Louie, Shere Khan, and more of your other favorites this fall, when the Disney Afternoon brings edge-of-your-seat fun and excitement to television with a new series called TALESPIN.

COMING ATTRACTIONS: And, in the months to come, we'll be bringing you graphic adaptations of Disney's PETER PAN, our new Mickey Mouse animated adventure, THE PRINCE AND THE PAUPER, and, of course, our full-length animated holiday treat, THE RESCUERS DOWN UNDER.

If you'll bring the popcorn, we promise to save you a seat.

GAWRSH!

I GOT MY OWN LETTER COLUMN!

Send to: Disney Comics, 500 South Buena Vista Street
Burbank, California 91521

Dear Editor,

It was a very nice surprise to find a comic book of Goofy Adventures. It's fantastic that he is starring in his own comic! I started my collection with part 2 of "Goofy Frankenstein." The format and composition in this story is great! It is so imaginative, new and fresh.

I also wish to mention that the pencil, ink and color jobs are also great, especially the ink-made shadows and lights in the four pages of "Goofy Peary Discovers the North Pole." My congratulations to Rick Hoover. (By the way, I liked the "corny old gag" of the North Pole.) I also liked how you worked Mickey's character and facial expressions in this story (maybe because of my CalArts animation education).

I haven't been buying Disney's comics for years, but I am starting again, at least with Goofy. Keep up the good work!!!

Ivan Camilli
Rio Piedras, Puerto Rico

Dear Editor,

Goofy Adventures is the weakest title in your line. The stories are too silly. There are so many gags, they get in the way of the story. Also, "Goofy Frankenstein" was drawn so it's rather confusing. Goofy commanded the Monster and was attacked by it, but when Mickey gave it an order, it obeyed.

"The Goof Brothers at Kitty Hawk" made no sense at all. They build four inventions that can't fly, complain about it, then tie down another because it tries to fly. I can see Goofy doing that, but Mickey should have known better.

The problem is that your basic idea, of taking famous characters and retelling their stories in humorous ways, has been tried many times before and usually failed. Please try to show occasional present-day Goofy tales.

Sorry for the complaints, but after all these years, I don't want Goofy losing his own book again.

Ronald C. Morgan
Norwalk, CA

No need to apologize; here in the Mouse House, we know that people write only when they care.

I hope that you've liked our more recent issues. "First Goof on the Moon" may satisfy your wish for a present-day Goofy story. Next issue also ventures towards modern days, as you'll see elsewhere on this page.

Dear people,

I have just bought Goofy Adventures, and I love it!!! I want to know if you are going to print this, and does Goofy have a girlfriend? If so, bring her into the comics!!!

Michael Weekley
St. Clairsville, OH

Goofy doesn't have a girlfriend right now--but you never know when romance will strike! And by the way, I'm sorry, but we're not going to print your letter.

The Request Poll: Well, your votes are stacking up nicely. For those who came in late, the Request Poll is how we find out whom you want Goofy to portray. Send us one, two, three or four names; if a choice gets votes from lots of readers, we'll see what we can do about creating a Goofy version of him.

At the moment, the poll's leaders include Christopher Columbus, Sherlock Holmes, Genghis Khan, Dracula, James Bond, and Davy Crockett. We're hard at work on Bond and Crockett, and the others are possible, too. The runner-up for first place is George Washington, who will appear in GA #8; and the most popular character of all will appear next issue (see below).

Next issue: You demanded him, so he's back: SUPER GOOF! We're presenting one of his classic tales especially for his 25th anniversary.

Plus, we've got the all-new "Goofy Hippocrates" by Don Ferguson (of this issue's "Leonardo da Vinci"), Hector Saavedra and Ruben Torreira; a cover by Rick Hoover; and more!

David Seidman, Editor
